

Take a walk on the High Line
 and enjoy Italian delights at EATALY

Tuesday, May 1, 2012

As you ascend the elevated railway, above the meatpacking district, you are transported into an urban garden oasis. Today, instead of a freight train, the High Line serves as an international model for the reuse of transportation infrastructure. It is a remarkable transformation. Our local guide tells us of the history and design of this amazing woodland and grassland. Wear comfortable walking shoes for this trip, there is an elevator available and seats along the way for resting Afterwards, we will bring you to EATALY, the latest Italian marketplace for shopping and eating. Here you can choose your own lunch spot for dining and also shop at your leisure. Feel free to bring a cooler bag to take home your food purchases.
