

Join us for a day out at

Snug Harbor Botanical Gardens of Staten Island

with lunch at Li Greci's

Tuesday, May 15, 2012

Snug Harbor Cultural Center and Botanical Garden is the product of more than 30 years of restoration and development to convert a 19th century home for retired seamen to a regional arts center housing myriad museum and arts programs as well as an active Artist-in-Residence program. It is the largest ongoing adaptive reuse project in America and is considered one of New York City's unique architectural complexes and historic landscapes. You will enjoy a docent-led tour of the gardens. The art of the Chinese garden is closely related to Chinese landscape painting, capturing of its essence and spirit, revealing a journey full of surprises and meditative pauses. The Tuscan Garden is modeled after the exquisite Villa Gamberaia in Florence which features landscaped terraces, formal water elements, topiary and period plantings, as well as an outdoor amphitheater and a vineyard.

Lunch will be served at LiGreci's including appetizer, salad, choice of entrée below, dessert, coffee and tea.
